ROOSEVELT MESSAGE OPENS CAMPAIGN WARS

Italians Bomb American Hospital

6 AIRPLANES RAID FIELD BUILDING

U. S. Institution Flew Stars And Stripes, Reports State

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press) ADDIS ABABA, Jan. 4. (AP)—The Ethiopian government announced today that six Italian planes had bombed an American field hospital at Daggah Bur in southeastern Ethiopia.

A telegram from the head of the hospital to Dr. T. A. Lambie, head of the Ethiopian Red Cross, mentioned no casualties in reporting the bombing, a fact which was taken here as an indication that all persons at the hospital escaped. The hospital flew the American flag, reports said.

The message to Dr. Robert Lambie was sent by David Stokes, an Englishman who succeeded Dr. Robert Hockman of Wheaton, Ill., as head of the hospital after Dr. Hockman was killed when a bomb which he supposed to be a "dud" exploded.

Bombs Kill 10
An Ethiopian communique announced a fleet of Italian planes bombarded heavily the region south of Makale, on the northern front, killing 10 persons and wounding 15 in the sector where Emperor Haile Selassie's defenders have been waging their first major offensive.

Further adding to the European imbroglio over factors tangent to the war in East Africa was the death of Gunner Lundstrom, one of the Swedish Red Cross workers wounded during an Italian air raid last Monday.

Dr. Fried Hylander, chief of the Swedish Red Cross unit in Ogdien province, himself wounded, described the Fascist air raid as an "utterly deliberate act."

Oil Embargo Seen
In Paris, imposition of an oil embargo was believed possible now because of Mr. Roosevelt's program to restrict exports to belligerents of essential war materials to peace-time levels.

The question of an oil embargo will be revived in Congress in about a fortnight, and informed sources said Great Britain would be influenced by Roosevelt's attitude in determining its own stand on the controversial question.

ALAMEDA GIVEN NAVAL BASE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP)—The navy was reported today by Representative Carter (R., Cal.), as having picked Alameda, Cal., as the first choice for a powerful air base in the San Francisco bay area.

Carter said he received that word today in a conference with Secretary Swanton. The base would cost $12,000,000 to $15,000,000.

FAMILY DIES AS HOME BURNS

"OJAVE, Jan. 4. (AP)—A family of three burned to death today in their home.
Lawrence Garau, his wife, and their 3-year-old son were the victims. Leonard Garau, Garau's brother, escaped by leaping from a window, but flames cut off the others. The cause of the fire was not known.

MENTON NOT QUARANTINED

Son Has Chickenpox At San Diego; Report Was Smallpox

A mild flurry was caused in courthouse circles today by an erroneous report that District Attorney W. F. Menton was quarantined at San Diego because his son, Billy, 8, had suffered an attack of smallpox. The Journal investigated and found that instead of smallpox, Billy only has the chickenpox.

The boy is quarantined at the U. S. Grant hotel, but Mr. Menton will not be forced to remain there. Chicken pox is a children's disease which adults do not contract or transmit. Mrs. Menton will remain with her son at San Diego.

EXPERT STUDIES TODD DEATH

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4. (AP)—A criminologist took up the trail today in the investigation of the death of Thelma Todd, blonde movie star whose body was found in her garage Dec. 16, the victim of carbon monoxide poisoning. Frank Gompert, sheriff's office criminologist, was given articles of her clothing and other bits of physical evidence to examine.

Knotty Relief Situation Bodes Political Troubles for County

The question of relief work in Orange county has grown to the point where it is one of the most absorbing problems facing the public at large. It is ramified, difficult to understand and operate, and this lack of understanding of its provinces and peculiar quirks seem in a fair way to embroil the county in major political difficulties.

Examined closely, the question boils down to a few pertinent facts. There are four government agencies in the county acting for general relief purposes; the State Relief administration, the Works Progress administration, the Public Works administration and the county welfare department.

Their functions are entirely different and distinct from each other. The county welfare department cares for specialized cases, the

Sam Long Named For Tustin Postoffice Job

HUGH PLUMB PASSED UP BY M'ADOO

H. H. Cotton Declares He Had Little To Do With Selection

The Tustin postmastership, center of a bitter fight among Orange county Democrats, was reported terminated today when Hamilton H. Cotton, Democratic leader of San Clemente, announced that United States Senator William Gibbs McAdoo had recommended Sam Long, 466 West Second street, Tustin, for appointment. The recommendation, according to Mr. Cotton, was sent to Washington nearly a week ago.

Friends of Hugh Plumb also a candidate, were wondering today just how the senator arrived at a decision in the matter. They pointed out that Mr. Long, who is at present employed on the administrative staff of the Orange County Works Progress administration, did not register as a Democrat until after the last presidential election.

New Resident There
They also are puzzled over the senator's decision due to the fact that Mr. Long has been a resident of the Tustin township for only a little over a year.

In making the announcement, Mr. Cotton said he had had little to do with the appointment. Friends of Mr. Plumb had asked Mr. Cotton to use whatever influence he had in procuring the position for their candidate. Mr. Cotton explained that he had not received the request until too late to act. One member of the Democratic central committee, however, recently said he had voted for Mr. Long because he understood Mr. Cotton wanted Long to have the job.

Two Jobs Hang Fire
J. G. Mitchell, chairman of the central committee, simply had this to say: "We recommended Sam Long."

There are two other postoffice appointments in Orange county still hanging fire. In the near future recommendations will be made for the appointment of postmasters in Anaheim and Placentia. There are at least two candidates in the field for the Anaheim job, Louie Hoskins and Howard Haines. In Placentia, the leading candidate is William Biedelst. So far, there have been no recommendations made for appointment to these two offices.

Man Registers As Anarchist; Causes Turmoil

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 4. (AP)—A lone Anarchist threw voter registrations into mild turmoil in San Diego today.

Thomas Ernest Abel, a locksmith, broke the smooth routine of registering Democrats and Republicans late yesterday by insisting on being listed as an Anarchist. Lawrence D. Laughlin, one of 400 deputy clerks, said Abel refused to say under what party he had previously been registered, shaking fist angrily at Laughlin's insistence.

County Registrar Charles Duffy said he would ask District Attorney Thomas Whelan whether Abel had the right to declare himself an Anarchist.

BOURBONS OF STATE SPLIT

Sinclair Expected To Head Delegates At National Conclave

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4. (AP)—The split in Democratic party leadership in California was projected definitely today into the coming presidential campaign.

Members of the End Poverty League board of directors and of the state Democratic central committee met to select a tentative slate of delegates to the Democratic national convention pledged to production-for-use for the unemployed. In a letter to the meeting, Upton Sinclair, Democratic candidate for governor last year, challenged recent anti-production-for-use statements of United States Senator William M. McAdoo, charging he had repudiated the state Democratic platform.

At headquarters of Sinclair's Epic forces it was predicted the tentative slate would be headed by Sinclair and State Senator Culbert L. Olson, chairman of the state central committee. The slate was expected to be completed tonight. This slate then will be offered to President Roosevelt with the expectation that he will choose between it and any which Senator McAdoo and other "right wing" leaders may offer.

20,000 POLAND CONVICTS FREE

WARSAW, Jan. 4. (AP)—Twenty thousand Polish former prisoners were free today, released under a broad amnesty law. This amnesty law, enacted yesterday, proved of wider scope than any previous such act in Poland. Besides freeing the many prisoners, it commuted all death penalties to life terms.

heads of families, who have been on relief, and who have been certified to them for work through the SRA (formerly the SEEA).

PWA is primarily a federal works agency. It is different from the WPA in that it pays prevailing wage scales, can accept union men for work, and is not designed to care for destitution primarily caused by unemployment. It serves to relieve the unemployment pressure by creating jobs for men—some on relief, some not—but creating jobs in general.

The SRA cares for the residue, for those who do not qualify for WPA or PWA jobs and who can not be cared for under peculiar provisions of the county welfare department.

FIGHT LOOMS FOLLOWING MESSAGE

Politicians Now Watch Forthcoming Speech By Al Smith

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP)—Far from helping avert the breach threatened in his party, President Roosevelt's fighting message to congress was expected today to have repercussions reaching into the Democratic convention and possibly the Presidential campaign.

By the same token, there was an inclination among some Republican independents to consider it in the words of Senator Nye of North Dakota—"a challenge to the old guard in the Republican party."

Watch Smith Speech
Politicians tended to attach more significance than ever to the speech by Alfred E. Smith here Jan. 25 to the American Liberty League.

Although the President did not mention the league, his reference to having "earned the hatred of entrenched greed" prompted some Democrats to say that he was aiming at the league as well as other organizations opposed to the New Deal.

'Where to Head In'
Rep. Maverick (D., Tex.) commented that the address told "the Liberty League, the National Association of Manufacturers, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and all the other hungry soreheads that got fat off the government where to head in."

"Standing pat, no quarter," typified the conclusions of those who sought to glean from the message hints of future New Deal plans and the Roosevelt-Garner re-election platform.

39 IN CONGRESS BACK PENSION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP)—The Townsend National Weekly today claimed 39 congressmen as having promised to support the Townsend old age pension plan this session of congress.

As of Dec. 20, the weekly said, 60 replies have been received to questionnaires. Of these, it said 39 signified support; five were opposed; two were non-committal and 14 were undecided.

Those listed in the support column included Carter, Gerhardt and Kahn, Republicans, and Hoepfel, Costello, Kramer, Ford and Stubbs, Democrats, all of California. Lea, Republican of California, opposes it.

HEADS SPEED PEACE ACT

Neutrality Legislation Will Be Hurried, Say Senate Leaders

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP)—Senate Democratic leaders determined today to push neutrality legislation to quick passage.

Pending was an administration bill proposing epoch changes in the nation's policies toward warring nations. It was urged personally by President Roosevelt last night in his address to congress.

Democratic Leader Robinson said a joint meeting of his party's steering and policy committees had determined upon expediting the neutrality program. But the Arkansas senator could not say whether neutrality or the bonus would reach the senate floor first.

The foreign relations committee will meet next week—probably Wednesday—to take up the administration bill introduced by its chairman, Senator Pittman (D., Nev.).

This measure proposes as in the present act: a mandatory embargo on shipments of arms and ammunition, and gives the President partial discretion in imposing peace time quotations on shipments of other commodities if he deems it necessary to preserve American neutrality.

Highlights of President's annual message:
"Now after 34 months of work, we contemplate a fairly rounded whole. * * * We have invited battle. We have earned the hatred of entrenched greed."

"I spoke (in 1933) of the practices of the unscrupulous money changers * * * who had admitted their failure and had abdicated. * * * But now with the passing of danger they forget their damaging admissions and withdraw their abdication."

"If these gentlemen believe * * * the measures adopted by this congress * * * have hindered rather than promoted recovery, * * * let them propose the complete repeal of these measures."

New Dealers and Foes Spurred by 'Fighting' Speech

(For full text of President's message, please see Page 9.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP)—New Dealers and their foes leaped to the campaign wars today under the spur of a defiant speech in which President Roosevelt slashed at his opponents as "entrenched greed" seeking to "enslave" the people, and compared it to foreign "autocracy" plunging toward world strife.

The echoes of the executive's voice, castigating dictators abroad and challenging his critics to try and wipe out the whole New Deal, had hardly died away last night in a house of representatives crammed with a color-splashed assemblage, than a mingled chorus of praise and denunciation was heard in the capital.

Democrats Hail
Democratic supporters hailed it in such terms as "a wonderful, courageous and aggressive address unmasking and revealing the opposition's character."

To Be Published as Chairman
Henry P. Fletcher the speech was "a challenge to a straw man to submit to a subservient and gagged congress the favorite socialistic features of the New Deal."

All agreed that this message on "The State of the Union," delivered in an extraordinary joint session of congress and to a radio audience over much of the world, was the "fightingest" speech the President has made. It was considered certain to be the "source book" for New Deal orators, high and low, from now until November.

Sharp Criticism
Almost overshadowing in significance the President's denunciation of his domestic enemies as "political puppets" preparing "shackles for the liberties of the people" was the criticism of autocratic regimes abroad. This criticism sharper than is usually leveled at foreign governments by a nation's head, prefaced the President's outline of a neutrality policy involving:

1. Refusal to "encourage the prosecution of war" by permitting belligerents to obtain war's implements from America.
2. A program to discourage shipment of other essential war materials except "our normal exports to them in time of peace";
3. "Adequate defense to save ourselves from embroilment and attack";
4. "Legitimate assistance" to persuade foreign nations to be peaceful.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4. (AP)—Mrs. Mabel M. Rogers, wife of Dr. Lester B. Rogers, Hollywood hospital superintendent, may lose physical custody of her two young children because she prefers hitch-hiking and "independence" to the luxuries of her fashionable Beverly Hills home.

She so testified yesterday in a custody proceeding before Superior Judge Elmer E. Robinson. Judge Robinson indicated he would award physical custody of Lois Rogers, 11, and John, 7, to Dr. Rogers, although both would retain legal custody.

LOCAL VIEWS ON MESSAGE

Republicans, Democrats Praise And Attack F. D. R.'s Speech

Democrats and Republicans in Orange county today heaped praise and criticism on the speech delivered to congress last night by President Roosevelt.

The two contrasting views were summarized by W. B. Martin, Democrat, and Homer Chaney, Republican.
"It was a masterpiece," said Mr. Martin. "It was the finest speech I ever heard. He didn't dodge any issue, but went to bat right down the line in plain English that any child could understand. I thought it was a masterpiece as a statement of his position."

Mr. Chaney—"I think Roosevelt is a bigger statesman than his speech was. I think his speech belittled him. I believe a president should be above petty politics."

Republicans on the whole were inclined to view the address as a political speech launching the 1936 campaign. Democrats, on the other hand, failed to see any political aspect to the address.

Stanley Goode, Republican, said: "It was a pretty good speech for (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 4)

MYSTERY ASSASSIN TRIES TO SCALP VICTIM IN CHICAGO MURDER

'MERCY CALL' LURES MAN TO DEATH

Doctor Found Dead In Auto; Police Hunt Man and Woman

CHICAGO, Jan. 4. (AP)—A new and savage twist was given today to the mysterious slaying early Friday of Dr. Silber C. Peacock when coroner's physicians reported the child specialist's slayer apparently attempted to scalp him.

Police Captain Martin McCormack who received the coroner's report, said nine knife wounds were found completely encircling the victim's head.

Killed By Shot

This savage surgery apparently was performed. Captain McCormack said, after the 40-year-old pediatrician had been killed by a revolver shot through the forehead.

Dr. Peacock, lured from his fashionable apartment hotel Thursday night, after a woman had telephoned "mercy call," was found dead last night in his sedan, three miles from his home.

Man Is Hunted

While making efforts to identify the mysterious woman caller, who told the physician a child needed his attention, police hunted another suspect—a man described by McCormack as a chiropractor. His name entered the case on a story told by Dr. Peacock's widow.

She said an angry man stormed her husband's office three months ago to charge that Dr. Peacock had performed an illegal operation upon the caller's wife.

Some evidence pointed to the chiropractor, McCormack said, as this furious visitor.

Dr. Peacock's secretary, Miss Kathryn Maloney, said she ordered the man out of his office after attempting to explain he treated no patients but children. Dr. Peacock was upset by the incident, Miss Maloney said.

MORE ABOUT ROOSEVELT

(Continued from Page 1) applause of his supporters. President Roosevelt said "many rulers in Europe and Asia have not pointed the way either to peace or good will."

Some nations, he said, are "dominated by the twin spirits of autocracy and aggression" and their people, deprived of democracy, "follow blindly and fervently the lead of those who seek autocratic power."

The President did not mention Mussolini's Italy, Hitler's Germany, or any other country by name, saying only that his words would be unpopular "in any nation that chooses to fit this shoe to its foot."

Although some Republicans joined the Democrats in praising the President's remarks on world affairs, there was some criticism. Senator Hastings (R., Del.), said they were "unnecessary, unbecoming and possibly dangerous." Senator Gibson (R., Wt.), asserted "I am in accord with what he said on maintaining the peace of the world."

Foes Unnamed

The President did not name the domestic foes he accused of "stealing the liberty of great national constitutional ideals to serve discredited special interests." But some of his supporters said that his targets were such critics as the American Liberty League, the National Manufacturers' association and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The scene was like an operatic "first night" as the President arrived, clad in striped trousers and a tuxedo, looked down from one gallery. Mrs. Roosevelt, decreeing afternoon dress as the correct attire for the unusual occasion, sat gravely following her husband's words from an advance text. She wore a black hat, dress of dark blue, with collar of lighter blue.

Two minutes of applause, shouts and stamping greeted the President as he appeared on the rostrum.

With veterans' organizations pressing for quick action on immediate cash payment of the bonus and some New Deal leaders in congress seeking a "compromise," the President did not mention the bonus issue.

Referring only briefly to legislative and fiscal affairs, he said that business prospects were good; that the nation is approaching a balanced budget; that there is prospect of cutting relief appropriations and that on

HISTORICAL SOCIETY HEARS COUNTY'S DIVISION STORY

"Old-time residents of Orange county," said Terry E. Stephenson, president of the Orange County Historical Society at its meeting at the Bowers Museum last night, "were not easily scared or misled. If they had been of the kind who were afraid to go ahead, or if they had been misled by newspaper agitators, there would have been no Orange county."

Mr. Stephenson exhibited to the society a scrapbook kept by Judge J. W. Townner, Orange county's first superior judge and a member of the board of commissioners appointed by the governor to organize the county. The story of the passage of the county division bill at Sacramento in March, 1889, and of the fight to carry the election for division was told in the scrapbook.

Los Angeles newspapers painted to the voters of the proposed new county a lurid picture of the tremendous tax rates that the taxpayers would have to meet. They said the rate would be from $4 to $6 on the $100 valuation. It was pointed out that the county would start out bankrupt, because it would have to carry a portion of debt existing in the old county of Los Angeles.

Carried By Big Vote

The people of Orange county carried county division by a heavy majority.

In the scrapbook was a dodger distributed by a committee of Orange, who led a fight to have Orange named as the county seat. The committee offered to give the county the old Hotel Rochester at Orange for a courthouse. The committee said the building was worth $60,000. Santa Ana replied with another dodger declaring the Hotel Rochester was a "fraud and a swindle" because the building had cost only $31,400, as proved by a statement from the superintendent of construction.

At the meeting of the society last night, William McPherson read a paper on "The Grange in Early Days." The paper was written by Miss Mabel Wing of Orange. It was the farmers' organization of the '70s, one of its activities being the organization and operation of cooperative stores, which, however, eventually were closed or sold out.

Officers Re-elected

C. E. Roberts of Santa Ana, who has made a study of the division of the old Rancho Santiago de Santa Ana, continued his talks to the society on that subject last night. He detailed the situation in the '50s and '60s by which many of the Yorba and Peralta heirs disposed of their interests. Finally, in the late '60s, he said, a court action caused the survey of the rancho, and its division into 73 parcels.

At the society meeting, all of its officers and directors were re-elected as follows: President, T. E. Stephenson; vice president, Mrs. J. E. Pleasants; secretary, S. M. Davis; curator, William McPherson; directors, the above-named officers and Mrs. C. A. Riggs, Dr. C. D. Ball and Mrs. Anita Alexander. Eleven new members were voted in last night.

STATE RELIEF FUND SHORT BARE ERRORS IN AUTO TAX

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 4. (AP)—California's unemployment relief administration still costs $900,000 a month despite a cut in the spending program from $10,000,000 to $2,000,000 monthly, Ray L. Riley, state controller, said today.

The controller's statement came as relief executives looked for a way out of what Riley said was the "most serious" situation the unemployment program yet has experienced in California.

The withdrawal of federal aid for direct relief and the slowness in transfer of the jobs from the state to WPA projects led the state with a $5,000,000-a-month unemployment program on Jan. 1 and only $2,000,000 of state money in sight to finance it.

An application for an additional $2,000,000 for January of the $2,000,000 the legislature appropriated for 1935-36 has yet to receive approval from Arlin Stockburger, director of finance.

Stockburger said a conference of relief officials will be held here next week to decide what should be done.

Riley's office estimated the state has enough money on hand to last through Monday.

Charles Edward McNauley, 41, Long Beach, is in the county jail charged with drunk driving. He was arrested last night by California Highway Patrolman Vernon Barnhill near Fullerton when he was observed driving his car in an assertedly erratic manner.

the basis of "existing laws" no new taxes are advisable. The mention of budget balancing brought shouts of derision from the Republican side; roars of approval from the Democrats.

Hints Court Action

One passage of the speech led some quarters to expect the New Deal may possibly seek some method of preventing its legislation from being tied up in lower federal courts. This passage said:

"The carrying out of the laws of the land as enacted by the congress requires protection until final adjudication by the highest tribunal of the land. The congress has the right and can find the means to protect its own prerogatives."

Some wondered whether a move was in prospect to revise procedure in lower federal courts in constitutional disputes. The justice department has complained of the "multiplicity" of suits in these lower courts, which have tied up enforcement of much New Deal legislation.

Attorney General Cummings, asked if some move was in prospect, said "Draw your own conclusions; it is a fair guess."

Blasting at his critics, President Roosevelt said "I recommend to the congress that we advance; that we do not retreat."

MORE ABOUT COMMENT

(Continued from Page 1) opening the 1936 campaign. But his challenge to the Republican party to do away immediately with the programs the Democrats have started was silly. We all know that will take a lot of time."

Chester I. Dale, Democrat, was one of the President's supporters who saw political aspects to the talk.

"I believe it was a good speech, a good political speech, and that it conveyed to congress just the message he meant it to—keep a stiff backbone and not back up on what they're doing," he said.

Kellogg Attacks Him

George Kellogg, president of the associated chambers of commerce, telephoned The Journal today to say:

"I think it was small business for the President to use his time to make a political speech when he should have been delivering a message to congress. I feel he made a great mistake and I am greatly disappointed in him."

Guy Gilbert, insurance man, saw the improbability of making a political speech in time allotted for a message to congress.

Roland Thompson, Republican, remarked that "It was a very good talk, all right, but it didn't convince me. I was rather disappointed. I thought maybe he would have something constructive to offer congress. But it was a political speech to launch the campaign."

'A Great Surprise'

Ben Tarver, Democrat: "It was a great surprise. It was a very effective and telling speech, one which his opponents will be hard put to break its force and effect. I think it will win people over to him."

W. C. May, Republican said, "It was a good political speech. But I think he will come back later and specify what he wants congress to do. A lot of his talk dealt with foreign entanglements. I don't think his speech really got down to what a President usually gives congress at its opening, but he's a great one to come back later with his messages on what he wants done."

'Political Earmarks'

Robert Brown, Republican, remarked that "I expected him to say specifically what he thinks on some of the major issues, but this didn't materialize. His talk on the European situation expressed the stand we all should take. I noticed he dodged the issue and aside from that it was a good general speech. It had the earmarks of a political speech."

Horace Head, Democrat, said, "I considered that it was a good speech and that it covered the present situation very accurately and very effectively."

Judge J. G. Mitchell, chairman of the Democratic central committee, said, "I didn't hear the speech myself, but I've heard some mighty good comments on it."

W. B. Williams, Republican, "Nothing at all to say."

ously denying charges that he planned to "steal" the election.

"If the officials don't do the right thing I'll call out the militia and run the thing myself," he said. Anti-administrationists hailed the speech with pleasure as a congressional investigation of the state's election machinery.

Mighty slim pickings for Santa Ana's rain guessers these days, as the sun continues to shine and unseasonal weather makes spring fever almost obligatory in the middle of winter.

Only two votes, those of Mrs. Ben Craig, 517 North Bristol, who guessed the big rain would begin Jan. 2 at 4 p. m., and of Lala Lujan, 318 Adams, who guessed at 4 a. m., were invalidated as rain failed to appear.

Remember that this rain is going to start sometime, and if you want to win fame and a new umbrella for your guess, get in your predictions to The Journal before the moisture starts to fall.

Five new prophets joined the ranks today. Their guesses were as follows: Mrs. Helen Johnson, 1211 South Sycamore street, Santa Ana, Jan. 9, 9 a. m.; Mrs. C. C. Yesterday Mr. Oropesa, a bachelor, distributed free candy to every boy and girl in the Mexican colony.

Every year for three years Mr. Oropesa has made candy and distributed it during the holiday season, according to Matt Lujan, of Delhi. There are between 150 and 175 families in Delhi. Mr. Oropesa reached them all.

MORE ABOUT LOCAL RELIEF

(Continued from Page 1) ministrations, is for the benefit of those persons whose destitution was and is caused by unemployment. It will be continued as a relief administration with two functions: to care for those persons who for reasons of residence, or because they did not seek aid soon enough, or for whom WPA or PWA work cannot be found, and to function as a certifying agency to WPA.

During December, SRA records reveal, $102,226 was spent in maintaining the department. This comes from a state fund, newly created, of $48,000,000 appropriated for 1935. Federal funds have been removed.

246 Tail To Report This $102,226 cared for 2057 heads of families. Of this number SRA has certified 1064 cases to WPA. Of these 246 were given assignments and did not report, for various reasons, $18 were certified and were not given jobs because none were available; and 66, for physical disabilities, were assigned to "light labor," of which there is none in the county at present.

There also are 993 heads of families registered with SRA, which are not eligible for WPA assignment, and must be cared for.

The county welfare department, operating independently and caring for different persons, spent $24,703 during December, in caring for 1350 cases. This amount was duplicated in appropriations from state funds.

2689 on WPA Jobs WPA has a total of 2689 persons working on county projects at present, making a grand total of 6096 receiving direct help from three agencies. WPA figures are not available here, as certification and assignment to jobs is made in Los Angeles.

Revealing that the SRA is a necessary agency, 2386 families have applied since Oct. 25 for help, of which 615 were heads of families who had never before received relief.

The sticker in this fact is two-fold: First, the unemployment crisis has not been passed, if 615 families found since Oct. 25 that they needed relief; second, federal provisions governing WPA state that in order to be eligible a man must have been receiving relief from other agencies at some time between May 1 and Nov. 1. Hence a man who loses his job today, or did at any time after Nov. 1, is definitely under the province of the SRA, and no other.

Little Transient Aid

There is no provision made for transient help in Orange county, except through private charitable organizations. The government has, however, provided two possible means of aid. It will either provide transportation for a transient back to his legal place of residence, or it will certify him from Los Angeles and other intake points (none in this county) to transient camps.

One of these bodies it is hoped to eliminate soon. If the SRA case load in California can be reduced to 40,000, then the local SRA agencies (there are 40 of them) will be incorporated as a special branch of county welfare departments, to persist in their present functions.

Some problem? Yes. The pressing point is the fact that in Orange county there are some 6100 heads of families needing relief, exclusive of those on PWA jobs, or who have been too proud to register for help, or who are living up their little incomes now and soon will be on the hands of the state, county or federal government for assistance.

MAN BURNED IN H. B. BLAST

Ramon Carago, 35, was rushed to St. Joseph's hospital in the Dixon ambulance at 9 a. m. today, suffering from first and second degree burns and shock as the result of a mysterious explosion in his home, 324 Tenth street, Huntington Beach, this morning.

Fire Chief J. K. Sargent is investigating the blast, which burned clothing from the victim and yet did no damage to his home in the Drake courts. No evidence of fire was found in the house, it was reported.

DRIVER FREED OF BLAME FOR DEATH

J. C. Thompson, Anaheim, driver of a car which on New Year's day ran into a bicyclist ridden by Louis Gomez, 16, Cypress, was exonerated of blame in the lad's death by a coroner's jury yesterday. The inquest was held in the Backs, Terry and Campbell mortuary in Anaheim. The fatal accident occurred on the highway near Cypress.

A coroner's jury this morning, hearing an inquest into the death last Wednesday of Mrs. Dess Williams, 50, Ocean Park, held that death was accidental and the result of an unavoidable accident. Mrs. Williams was fatally injured Dec. 29 when the car in which she was riding, driven by her son, Forest Williams, also of Ocean Park, crashed into the side of a Santa Fe passenger train at the Orangebeach avenue crossing near Fullerton.

SMITH HEADS PRESIDENT'S BALL PLANS

Appointment of Councilman Joseph F. Smith as chairman of Santa Ana's activities for the President's Ball, annual benefit for crippled children of the United States, was announced today, following receipt of a telegram from Henry Doherty, general chairman of the national committee in New York City.

The benefit will be staged in cities throughout the nation on Jan. 30.

Keep 70 Per Cent Here

Each city will be allowed to keep 70 per cent of its proceeds this year for use in combating infantile paralysis. This is a new plan inaugurated by the national committee in the belief that each district is entitled to funds in direct proportion to its support of the national benefit. Mr. Smith said. Thirty cents of every dollar received will be forwarded to the national committee.

Last year local sponsors were allowed to keep only 50 per cent of the proceeds, and in 1934 the complete relief program was handled financially by the national committee.

Name Location Soon

The place for this year's celebration will be selected within a few days, Mr. Smith said.

Rodney Bacon will be in charge of finances, and B. Z. McKinney will arrange entertainment for the Santa Ana event, in appointments announced today by Chairman

COUNTY G.O.P.S SHAPE PLANS

Final steps of formation prior to the formal organization of the Orange County Republican assembly were taken Friday noon at a meeting of the group held at James cafe.

Arrangements were made for a dinner meeting to be held on Jan. 21, at which time the charter for the organization will be presented by one of the officials of the state assembly, and officers will be elected.

E. M. Sundquist, as chairman, appointed a nominating committee consisting of Bill Iverson as chairman, Jack Wallace, Elmer Launer, Lotus Loudon and Dick Haster, to present a board of 20 directors and five officers to be voted on at the annual meeting.

By-laws and constitution of the assembly were adopted.

QUARANTINE LIFTED

ROBINSON TO TALK BONUS WITH F.D.R.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4. (AP)—Senate Democrats at their first party conference today authorized Leader Robinson to confer with President Roosevelt on the soldiers' bonus before the issue is broached in the senate.

Robinson announced that he would see the President as soon as the "opportunity arises."

Robinson predicted last week a bonus bill could be passed that would "meet executive approval." Powerful Republican support for the veterans' plan for full payment of the bonus was promised today while the administration's own leaders in congress maneuvered for a compromise bill acceptable to President Roosevelt. The latter ignored the issue in his annual message.

Minority support for the measure advanced jointly by the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Disabled American Veterans was foreseen in a statement by Senator McNary, the Republican leader.

He declared he would vote for the proposal "so long as there is no inflation in it."

Here and There With The Journal's
Rambling County Editor

By T. N. (BRICK) GAINES

BEGINS to sound like politicians are going to have some fun in Huntington Beach during the springtime.

At least, males of the community are reported busy starting in a campaign to keep reins of the city government in their hands, instead of turning them over to their wives.

With rumors that three women plan to run for city council seats, all sorts of things are being suggested as possibilities in a female government. Such as calico dresses and afternoon tea for the police department—wouldn't they enjoy that? Or, perhaps, knitting lessons for the firemen, so they could occupy their time when not fighting fires by making next winter's underwear.

And, if the wives are like some we know, they could outlast fishing on the municipal pier and golf on the local links, so there wouldn't be so many golf and fishing widows. Maybe they could ban beard-raising, and these street warming things up in the morning, so dear to lots of males—who can easily see that there are many possible improvements a woman's city council could make, if they desired.

However, all foolishness aside, there'll probably be an interesting campaign at the beach in April if the three women file as candidates. Admitting that their presence will live things up considerably, we might add that several men are also planning to seek the three seats which will become vacant in April.

Yesterday we reported that Mrs. Aiah Kirtpatrick, Mrs. Minnie Higgins and Mrs. Frank Betz were rumored to be planning to enter the race. Also Ed Stevens and Arthur Morehouse. Since that time we've heard that Herb Wood may also take a whirl at one of the positions, also John Whitefield, and even, perhaps, Jack Africa, of the brilliant socks. But, whoever runs, it'll be fun. To watch.

Would you be surprised to see the two bearded brothers who appear on couch dog boxes separated? Sure. Balboa residents are expressing almost as much concern over separation of the Smith Brothers and their boat supply and repair business there—although they're merely separating because of leases on buildings, which makes a move for the repair part of the business imperative.

For several years they've been working hand-in-hand, in their places of business on the bay front. Now expiration on the lease of Frank Smith's place causes the move of all his boat-repairing equipment to the site of the A. E. Hansen Boat works at Twenty-first street in Newport. Mr. Hansen's moving next door.

Incidentally, we're told that the business of moving a boat business is quite a business. For instance, 65 and 70-ton ways, used for hauling boats from the water, must be moved several miles from Balboa to Newport. Also all sorts of derricks and booms and other such equipment.

However, it isn't such a bad job for the Smith Brothers, as they own a large tug, the "Motorite," and she hauls everything up the bay by water.

Harry Welch at Newport, just received four letters which he sent on the first trip of the Pacific Clipper ship across the Pacific. They're all stamped, with a cachet explaining the trip, and everything necessary to make a collector of stamps happy.

He also received a beautiful Christmas card from Glen Martin, builder of the sea-flying boat. He's going to frame the letters and the card, which includes a picture of one of the boats, and hang 'em on the wall of his chamber of commerce. He figures the letters'll be worth something, one of these days.

Notes to you: Newport harbor yesterday would have "sold" any visitor in California. Perfect weather, calm seas, and happy people. . . . Harry Williamson, bay realtor, stands in his doorway and waves at passersby. . . . Many sleek yachts are out of the water, getting new coats of paint for next year's festivities. . . . The new overhead crossing at the Arches and Coast highway is coming along famously. . . . the old railroad bridge is gone, and new one is being built. . . . Fishermen, we hear, is still good. . . . So, let's go fishing.

FIESTA WILL MARK RETURN OF SWALLOWS TO CAPISTRANO

SLATE EVENT MAR. 19 AT SAN JUAN

Mission Priest Plans To Revive Pageant As Part Of Fete

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO.—Plans are being made by residents of the mission pueblo to hold another fiesta on March 19. This date was chosen to celebrate the return of the swallows, which, for years has occurred on that date.

The Rev. Father Arthur J. Hutchinson is laying plans for revival of the Mission Pageant on the same date.

Committees will be appointed soon to arrange for the proposed fiesta. It is hoped that neighboring communities will join in the celebration honoring the return of the swallows to Mission San Juan Capistrano.

Mrs. Fred L. Kruger, who was prominent in work for the successful spring fiesta given here last year, is working on a plan for the proposed celebration. Judge John Landell, local pioneer, is also interested in staging such an event, it was reported.

Many county residents have expressed interest in proposed revival of the mission pageant, famous years ago, by the Rev. Father Hutchinson, as part of the festival. A complete outline for the proposed fiesta will be presented at a meeting of the local chapter of the Order of America Association, scheduled for noon Monday, it was announced.

Artist Cuprien's Whiskers, 'Amen Corner' Are Subjects of New Year Vows in Laguna

By McDONALD WHITE

Here it is the start of a New Year, and all those festive salutations like "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year," and "Whoopee," will have to go into hibernation until another year rolls around.

Most of us will continue writing 1935 on our letters until the habit gradually wears off. But don't let it worry you. It's just another of those subconscious sentimentalities, like hating to trade in the old car for a new one.

All those strange noises we've been hearing were the breaking of New Year's resolutions.

Speaking of high aspirations, Captain George Portus reports the chamber of commerce has made a silent but unanimous resolution to sponsor bigger and better activities this year.

But that's up to the new board of directors, who get themselves elected Jan. 15.

Frank Cuprien has resolved not to clip off his Santa Claus beard until he loses his pet walking stick. However, it's a fairly sure bet that he'll hang on to both.

Otherwise, how would his motoring friends recognize him when he raises his stick for a ride?

It's rumored that "Amen Corner" has made a resolution to install microphones inside and an amplifier outside of their rendezvous, so that all their masterly argumentation may no longer be lost to common ears.

CLUB SECTION HAS MEETING

ORANGE.—The Junior Matrons' Toastmaster section of the Women's club met in the lobby of the clubhouse Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. E. H. Smith as honorary toastmaster. Mrs. Arthur Nies presided.

MITES MONDAY FOR PIONEER

FULLERTON.—Last rites will be held at 2 p. m. Monday at the McAulay and Suters chapel here for Andrew Rorden, 80, one of Fullerton's earliest pioneers, who passed away yesterday at his home, 415 East Chapman avenue.

Mr. Rorden had been a rancher in this district for the past 63 years.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Marie Rorden, Fullerton; a brother, William Rorden, Orange, and a sister in Germany.

MANY TEACHERS VISIT IN LAGUNA

LAGUNA BEACH.—The combination of fine weather and Christmas holidays has lured many school teachers to Laguna for the vacation period.

Among others from out of town, Miss Lucinda Griffith from the Santa Ana High school, has been visiting her family, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Griffith, 330 Cliff drive, from Riverside, R. Kyle Egate and Cecil Stalder spent 10 days at the Egate summer cottage, 445 Linden avenue.

Mrs. Grace Gilman and her son, David Gilman, returned recently from a holiday visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Honnold, Hollywood.

TRUCK CROPS VALUE HIGH

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 4. (AP)—Commercial truck crop growers of the state marketed crops valued at $72,522,000 in 1935, an increase of $4,700,000 over the preceding year. The federal-stat crop reporting service stated today.

Police Chief Abe Johnson won't tell what his resolutions are until they are okayed by the city council.

Floyd Case and A. J. Stead have made resolutions to work 15 hours a day this year. But that's nothing to their credit—they do anyway.

Laguna Beach has made a resolution that's not apt to be broken for a long time. It is: as long as there are parades held in Pasadena on New Year's day, and a float from Laguna to enter—Harold Reed will build it.

The float entered this year was so beautiful and symbolic a tribute to two great Americans—Will Rogers and Wiley Post—that thousands of men removed their hats and tears came to women's eyes as it passed in review.

The floral picture of Will Rogers was perfectly and magnificently executed under the direction of Loren Holmwood, well known Laguna artist.

Credit also goes to the volunteers who assisted Harold Reed in assembling the float, and to Gene Douglass, the American Legion, the city council and to all who contributed time and money in the earnest effort to make Laguna live up to the name of the most artistic community in the West.

The Artists' ball at the art gallery New Year's eve proved a rousing success. A happy crowd ushered the new year in with David Fairbairn presided, and introduced Wally Grigg, Santa Ana, who in turn introduced Ollie Le Jenda, boy whistler, who whistled and accompanied himself on the banjo. Grigg and his partner, Floyd Stewart gave a vaudeville act, which was followed by stunts in magic performed by Mr. Stewart.

Capt. Al Wunderlich, of the Orange National Guard, showed two reels of film made at the national convention of the American Legion in St. Louis last fall.

S. S. CLASS HAS WATCH PARTY

EL MODENA.—A progressive watch party was held recently by young people's Sunday school class of the Friend's church, of which Mrs. J. F. Sorenson is teacher.

After meeting at the Sorenson home the party went to the Alamositos Friend's church where they attended special services conducted by the Rev. Harley Moore, East Whittier, former pastor of the El Modena church. Music was furnished by Kenyon Moody, Floyd Whitehorn, Sue Conway and Grace-Marie Sorenson, all of El Modena.

Returning to the original meeting place, an election of class officers was held, with Juanita Stanfield elected president; Donalda Dollard, vice president; Floyd Whitehorn, secretary, and Kenyon Moody, Wayne Gray and Rodney Mahoney, social committee.

When refreshments were served favors were given the guests which were two bells joined together, bearing the message, "Happy New Year, Henry and Betty 1936," announcing the engagement of Henry Stoner, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stoner, El Modena, and Miss Betty Carson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armour Carson, Hebron, Ind.

In the games section in the basement Sherman Padlock contributed valiantly in a generous effort to "break the bank."

Din and Eric St. Clair made a picturesque pair in their Mexican costumes, as did Maurice Day, dressed as a Spanish Don.

Victor Rankin dropped in, with his mother. Vic is going places with the Pasadena Community players, according to reports that have drifted in this direction.

At the moment of writing, the new Fish and Game patrol boat, "Broadbill," just hove to beside a nest of lobster traps out beyond the help beds in front of town. Now they're yanking up the traps, on the look for shorts. But they say lobsters of any size are hard to catch these days.

Doc Mallow is in the throes of moving his drug store all the way across the street into the new building.

That's all very good. But what will Doc's dog, Chico, think about the situation when he spies other pooches prancing by his corner? They say you can't teach an old dog new tricks, so maybe there's trouble in the air when the actual moving takes place.

The question everyone is wondering is: Will Chico continue to guard his old corner—or will he faithfully follow his master to the new quarters?

Guesses are free in 1936!

COSTA MESA CLUB MEETING HELD

COSTA MESA.—The Costa Mesa Friday Afternoon Women's club opened the new year yesterday with a recital by pupils of Mrs. C. A. Custer, well-known musician.

Mrs. E. M. Gage and Mrs. J. M. Cooper were hostesses at tea and a social hour following the musical and business session. Mrs. J. O. Tallman, president of the club, presided.

S. S. CLASS HAS WATCH PARTY

EL MODENA.—A progressive watch party was held recently by young people's Sunday school class of the Friend's church, of which Mrs. J. F. Sorenson is teacher.

After meeting at the Sorenson home the party went to the Alamositos Friend's church where they attended special services conducted by the Rev. Harley Moore, East Whittier, former pastor of the El Modena church. Music was furnished by Kenyon Moody, Floyd Whitehorn, Sue Conway and Grace-Marie Sorenson, all of El Modena.

Returning to the original meeting place, an election of class officers was held, with Juanita Stanfield elected president; Donalda Dollard, vice president; Floyd Whitehorn, secretary, and Kenyon Moody, Wayne Gray and Rodney Mahoney, social committee.

When refreshments were served favors were given the guests which were two bells joined together, bearing the message, "Happy New Year, Henry and Betty 1936," announcing the engagement of Henry Stoner, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stoner, El Modena, and Miss Betty Carson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armour Carson, Hebron, Ind.

In the games section in the basement Sherman Padlock contributed valiantly in a generous effort to "break the bank."

Din and Eric St. Clair made a picturesque pair in their Mexican costumes, as did Maurice Day, dressed as a Spanish Don.

Victor Rankin dropped in, with his mother. Vic is going places with the Pasadena Community players, according to reports that have drifted in this direction.

At the moment of writing, the new Fish and Game patrol boat, "Broadbill," just hove to beside a nest of lobster traps out beyond the help beds in front of town. Now they're yanking up the traps, on the look for shorts. But they say lobsters of any size are hard to catch these days.

LEWIS BROWNE HERE MONDAY

LEWIS BROWNE

LEWIS BROWNE HERE MONDAY

Paramount of Americas Intellectualists, Lewis Browne will open a series of six lectures on civilizations of the world Monday night at the Willard auditorium at 7:30 o'clock.

He will talk on "Modern Civilization in England." Monday night lectures for subsequent five weeks will be based on France, Germany, Italy, Russia and Asia.

Under auspices of the adult education department of the city schools, the lectures will be open to the public.

Mr. Browne received his degree from the University of Cincinnati, where he majored in philosophy and religious history. His book on comparative religions, "This Believing World," has been the most popular volume on religion in libraries of North America.

A scholar with first-hand knowledge of countries of the world, he has a keen sense of humor and a faculty for probing to the root of a problem.

Cleanup Time
Looking Ahead
It's Saturday again and time for the first 1936 brushing out of the sports cupboard. The cleanup:

Santa Anita race track, before its season closes Feb. 29, will see a cool 25 million dollars wagered by the credulous. In 10 days more than three million claim shells have gone through the windows.

Boxing returns to the present slim list of Orange county sports next Friday night. Promoter Sam Sampson has taken a toe hold, is facing the final and promises a build-up in the boxing business. The Sherman Institute boys, who made a smash hit with the local customers in the last fight night here, may be on the card. Whatever happens, you will see some new and better faces in the red and white corners of the highway 101 arena because new talent is now available. The shift in fight nights from Thursday to Friday assures this since many clubs operate on Thursday and tie up good fighters.

Coach Reece (Pinky) Greene may become the man of the 1936 year. His Saint basketballers open their league season Friday and indications are the casaba tossers will bring glory and honor to the local institution. Go and see some of these basketball games for yourself. The court game is always snappy and this year is undergoing a nationwide revival of interest. Santa Ana fans should fall in line—and probably will.

High jumper Blas Mercurio, who has scaled six feet on numerous occasions, already is taking daily workouts at Poly field and will be joined by other Saints not occupied by basketball when another Santa Ana High school track season rolls around next week.

Len Stafford, pole vaulter; Herschel Whitney, miler; Dearing Waggoner and Jim Johnston, half-milers, are among Reece (Pinky) Greene's 1936 prospects planning to begin early training for competition which will open with the annual interclass meet the C. I. F. finals in late May, next month and continue through the C. I. F. finals in late May.

Santa Ana Junior college's trackmen, who will be well-balanced in the Eastern conference, will be called out soon by Coach Bill Cook. Some of the Dons will begin the training grind next week, he said.

Coach Greene may conduct a program of relays for county schools here preceding the Saint interclass. The preps' first outside competition probably will come at the annual A. A. U. relays in Long Beach.

PETROLS PLAY AT MONROVIA SUNDAY

Determined to repay its opponent for a 6-5 defeat last week, the Petrol Gas nine of Garden Grove performs at Monrovia in a hard ball game at 2:15 p. m. tomorrow. Peterson or Mallett will be on the mound for the Petrols, with Starkey catching.

PRIZE KICKER

DICK WEISGERBER of East Orange, N. J., sophomore fullback at Williamette university, Salem, Ore., placekicked 10 out of 12 extra points in 1935, running his two-year record to 32 conversions in 41 tries. He kicked one field goal, averaged 37.07 yards on 43 punts, 49½ on eight kickoffs, 4½ yards on 78 line plunges—and he passes, too.

STARS BEHIND TWO YOUNG GOLFERS

Vic Owen Leads Orange County Entries With Good Card Of 79

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 4. (AP)—Two young eastern golfers entered the second round of the Riverside $3,000 open today a bare stroke ahead of a dangerous field of veterans. The pair, Herman Barron, White Plains, N. Y. and Vic Ghezzi, Deal, N. J., shot the Victoria club course on the first 18 holes with 68's, four better than par.

Johnny Geertson, Ogden, Utah, missed the low score bracket by a few inches, and, literally speaking, a match. Late in starting, he came on to the eighteenth as darkness closed in. His caddy struck a match over the cup, but his short putt went wide and with it a chance to tie the leaders.

Leaders Close
Tied with Geertson's 69 was Les Hensley, Coalinga, Cal., and back a shot were five potential winners—Harold McSpaden, leading money winner in last winter's tournament parade in Southern California; Ray Mangrum, Ogden, and Jimmy Hines, Garden City, L. I.

Al Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., pro, beat the par line by a stroke and the 72's were overrun with talent.

Other Threats
Sam Parks, jr., Pittsburgh, national open champion, and Walter Hagen celebrated return to par form after dismal journeys around the links in recent weeks.

Olin Dutra, former national kingpin of golfers, went out on the second round of the Riverside open golf tourney today with a respectable 72 on his first round card, par for the tough Victoria course.

Dutra trailed the leaders, Herman Barron and Vic Ghezzi, Johnny Geertson and Al Zimmerman, but was bunched with a group of other greats who were expected to outdistance the field today.

LASKY KAYOES EX-GRIDDER

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4. (AP)—The ring hopes of Art Lasky, Minneapolis, eclipsed since last year's beating by Jim Braddock, brightened today after a knock-out victory over Frank Wallulis, former Washington State college gridder.

A crashing left hook by the towering Jewish heavyweight floored his foe in the fourth round last night at the Legion stadium.

The slam-bang battle found round knocked through the ropes, he barely saved himself from slipping to the canvas. In the second, Wallulis rocked the Minneapolis fighter with a volley of rights, but Lasky warmed to the attack and gradually gained control. A capacity crowd of 4000 attended.

VIC OWEN LEADING SANTA ANA GOLFERS

Carding a 79, Vic Owen, pro at the Willowick course, led Santa Ana's golfing delegation after the first 18 holes of the $3000 Riverside open at the Victoria Country club yesterday. He was to tee off today with Fay Coleman and Ray Mangrum.

Elmer Curry, Santa Ana High school athlete, was second to Owen with a 39-41-80. Owen was out in 39 and back in 40 over the 72-par course. H. S. Wright shot a 44-40-84, and Dwight Ainsworth a 40-47-87.

Rose Bowl Gridders Fail To Impress Alabama Boy, Brother of All-American

Alabama of 1934—or even of 1935—could have beaten either Stanford or Southern Methodist in the Rose Bowl if the showing these eleven made New Year's day is a true measure of their ability.

That is the opinion of Bill Wallace, brother of Rice's all-American William Wallace at Houston, Texas—who dropped in for a friendly chat with The Journal's sports department yesterday. Bill, who resembles his famous brother, will be a senior next month at the University of Alabama.

S. M. U. Too Anxious
"I believe S. M. U. was too anxious and excited over its first Rose Bowl invitation, which factor accounted for the Mustangs' downfall. Stanford, despite its stouter defense, appeared only slightly improved over last year," said Bill, who came west with nine friends from five different colleges to see the game.

The party from down south left Birmingham, Ala., by motor Dec. 5, and was to leave for home today. Bill lives in Mobile. Members of the sight-seeing group, most of whom visited in Santa Ana yesterday, were Evans Simenoff, Georgia; Otto Simbelar,

CUB WINNING STRING WINS SALUTE

Ford Frick, National League Prexy, Writes Baseball Tribute

(This is another in a series written especially for the Associated Press by national sports leaders on results of 1935 and prospects for 1936.)

By FORD FRICK

President, the National League (Written for Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Perspective is building up with each passing month to make that September 21-game winning streak of the Chicago Cubs stand out stronger, taller and brighter against the skyline of the 1935 sports calendar.

We are beginning to realize now that we saw unfolded a page of baseball history in the making. Twenty-one straight victories! From third place to the pennant! The Cubs' conquest of the National league's 1935 championship truly belongs in baseball's gallery of immortal exploits.

It wasn't the longest winning streak in baseball history. The New York Giants of 1916 won 26 in a row, the all-time major league record. Theirs was a September drive, too, but without a pennant as its climax.

As the background builds up around the 1935 season, the picture also suggests the pennant drive of the Boston Braves in 1914. Those Braves under George Stallings' command had no streak as long as 26 or 21 but they charged up the pennant hill all the way from last place.

Those Cubs in 1935 weren't dark horses. They did their thing as 26 straight but to my mind they belong in that very select group with the Braves of 1914 and the Giants of 1916.

I think baseball, together with the country as a whole, will enjoy 1936 even more than 1935. All prospects point that way and for our league the year will stand out a bit more prominently from the fact that we celebrate our 60th birthday on Feb. 2.

Superior teamwork enabled the Loyolans to defeat the Bruins.

TROJANS DOWN BEAVER FIVE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4. (AP)—Southern California and Oregon State, winning a game apiece, left the comparative merits of their basketball teams a question mark today.

Long Beach Poly And Citrus Here

Basketball hopefuls of Orange county rested today before plunging into one of the busiest weeks of their season Monday.

Santa Ana will be the center of activity, with Reece (Pinky) Greene's Saint preps and Alvin Rehob's Don collegians making their 1936 debut in Coast Preparatory league and Eastern conference company.

Furnish Test

Long Beach Poly, highly favored to retain its championship, comes to Andrews gymnasium next Friday for a test that will determine to a great extent the titular possibilities of Santa Ana's rugged five, surprise winner of the Huntington Beach Invitational which attracted red-hot talent.

Preparations for the struggle with Long Beach will be climaxed in a traditional feud with Fullerton's Indians of the Football league here Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, following a clash between the lightweight teams of the schools. Larry Tway, scrappy little reserve who is fighting for a regular post, will re-join the Saint squad Monday, following a vacation in Arizona.

The Dons journey to Claremont for an engagement with the Pomona college varsity Wednesday night, and begin their Eastern conference season here Saturday night against the Citrus Owls. They will be at full strength Monday, with the return of Clarence (Tay) Riggs and John Jennison, who have been vacationing in the east.

AGED RECLUSE DIES OF STARVATION DESPITE $30,000 FORTUNE

FIND PLENTY OF FOOD IN HOUSE

Victim's Brother-In-Law Also Near Death; House Un-Heated

NEW YORK, Jan. 4. (AP)—An aged recluse, trembling with palsy, lay near death today, too weak to explain how his sister-in-law died of starvation in their barren, icy home when they had a $30,000 fortune and plentiful food available.

The body of Mrs. Anna Cloutier, 60, was found in bed last night in an unheated room. A physician said death had occurred at least three days before.

May Not Live
Medecine Cloutier, 60, lay in an adjoining room comatose from cold and hunger. He was taken to a hospital where physicians said it was doubtful he would live.

In kitchen cupboards were sufficient bread, milk, and meat to feed them for several days. Beside a kitchen stove was ample fuel.

Police believed the pair had become so feeble they were unable to keep the fire going or to feed themselves.

Fortune In House
The shabby, three story house evidently had been unheated all winter, but old bureau drawers concealed unusual wealth for the modest neighborhood.

Police found 14 bankbooks, issued by New York and Canadian banks, showing deposits of more than $30,000 and no withdrawals. All except one, issued to Cloutier, were in his sister-in-law's name.

Benefits to Jobless Through Insurance Program Is Told; Begin Payment Jan. 1, 1938

Something new—social security—went into effect Jan. 1 in California, as well as in the United States. How will it work? The following is the fourth of a series of articles answering that question.—Editor.

The vast and complicated machinery of the state and national unemployment insurance programs is being set up so that when a man loses his job he will have some income until he gets another. Right now the task of getting the big project under way is claiming so much attention that not much thought has been given to the amount of benefits an unemployed worker will get if he loses his job.

Such payments will not begin in any case until after Jan. 1, 1938, and then only for unemployment occurring after that date.

Maximum $15 Weekly
For total unemployment after that date a worker will receive benefits at the rate of 50 per cent of his average weekly wage. But the payments will not exceed $15 per week, nor will they be less than $7 per week.

The length of time for which benefits will be paid will depend upon the length of time during which a worker has been employed and has been contributing to the program from his wages.

For partial unemployment he will receive the difference between actual wages for the week and the benefits he would get if he were totally unemployed.

Tell Benefit Earnings
Each four weeks of employment in which a worker has made contributions to the program will earn him one week of benefits in case he is unemployed. For each 52 weeks or more, and not exceeding 103 weeks of such employment, he will earn 13 weeks of benefits. These will be paid in 12 consecutive months. For more than 103 weeks of such employment he will earn 20 weeks of benefits, paid in 12 consecutive months.

In any case wherein an employee accepts employment not subject to benefits under this program, the period during which he remains in this employment will be excepted from any computation of benefits due. The right to benefits will be suspended during the period of this employment.

Exempt from Claims
Waivers of benefits are to be invalid. Benefits are not subject to assignment or release and are exempt from claims of creditors and all processes of law.

An interesting feature of the program is that anyone refusing to work because a job is vacant due to labor trouble, or because wages or working conditions are worse than those prevailing in the locality, may not be denied compensation. If he refuses a job because he would be required to join a company union or quit a labor union if he took it, he may not be denied compensation.

HOLIDAYS END ON MONDAY

Back to School for Kiddies

"Let's see. I could tear my coat or set back the clock or lose my shoes. Or maybe even be sick. No, I hadn't better do that. I might get a dose of medicine."

Those were the ponderings of some little boys throughout the city today. The holidays are over and school starts again Monday, they remembered.

The new bicycle would have to be relegated to before 8:30 a. m. and after 3 p. m. Its shiny look never would wear off at that rate. Half the formulae in that new chemical set hasn't been tried, and little Jimmy wouldn't have but about an hour every night to work them. It was almost dark by the time school let out, and mom said you couldn't play football after dark.

Gosh, and the teacher had said she hoped they'd all have a good time and come back ready for school the first day after vacation. A lot she knew about holidays! Oh, well, after Monday there'll only be four days and then it would be Saturday again, and Jimmy could get up late and play all day.

MAN DIRECTS 200 IN FIRE TO SAFETY

Theater Manager Barely Escapes After Aiding Patrons To Leave

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4. (AP)—A cool-headed manager directed 200 patrons to safety from a burning movie theater in the Compton district and then scrambled through an exit unharmed as the roof collapsed.

H. W. Lohrum, Glendale, the manager, hurried to the stage when flames spread from a heating plant in the rear of the building last night. Calmly, he requested the crowd to file out and waited until the last patron had left before following.

The theater and two adjoining shops were burned to the ground, despite efforts of eight fire companies. Owners estimated the loss at $100,000.

Morgan, father of Aubrey Niel Morgan, brother-in-law of Mrs. Lindbergh. ICKES FLAYS 'SOAK POOR' PROGRAM

Says Sales Tax Plan Is Being Sponsored By Rich Persons

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 4. (AP)—Secretary Ickes today accused critics of the Roosevelt administration's tax legislation of advocating a "soak the poor" program.

"Our multimillionaires want the surtaxes on great incomes reduced or even abolished and sales taxes imposed in their stead," he said in a speech to the Rochester City Club.

Reverse Income Tax
"Now every one capable of honest thinking knows that a sales tax is a graduated income tax in reverse. It bears most heavily upon those least able to pay."

Ickes, the interior department and PWA chief, said he had been taught in his youth that taxation should be in proportion to ability to pay and according to benefits received from the government.

Rape Hearst
"Now to my utter distress," he said, "I read in certain newspapers that this is all wrong. Sitting humbly at the feet of such master economists and disinterested citizens as William Randolph Hearst and Col. Robert R. McCormick of the 'Chicago Tribune,' I am doing my best to unlearn what I was taught in my impressionable youth."

The new theory, he said, is to make the "under-income" pay and pay and pay for the government which the rich and prosperous have arrogantly come to regard as peculiarly their own."

on which erection of a permanent camp will be completed this month, a little meeting house and property adjoining the school grounds and a membership of 88 girls as compared with 22 last March, have been attained.

Catholic Women of Orange County Assemble Here For Quarterly Meeting

K. of C. Hall Is Scene of Conclave

Presidents of Societies of Santa Ana Combine for Hostess Duties

Motion pictures in America are better today because Catholic women and their families affiliated to protest the production of films which glorified gangsters, sexy characters and other objectionable types.

That was the message of the Rev. John Devlin, Los Angeles, diocesan director of films, before 100 Catholic women of Orange county at their quarterly meeting in the K. of C. hall yesterday.

Outlining the effects of the League of Decency, a covenant signed by Catholics throughout the nation demanding cleaner films, the Rev. Mr. Devlin explained how other organizations had joined in the campaign for better movies.

In a talk on "Altar Societies," Mrs. E. J. Lunschloss, secretary of the diocesan council, gave hints for study clubs, improvement of organizations and program plans.

Bruce Buell gave a reading, and Helen Markel sang, accompanied by Constance Brown.

Appointment of a nominating committee was made by Mrs. Ashby Turner, president, to include Mrs. F. F. Mead, Santa Ana, chairman; Mrs. W. F. Vollmer, Fullerton, and Mrs. M. J. Bradley, Anaheim.

Miss Beryl Kennedy, Anaheim, was commissioned to draw up by-laws for the Orange county council.

Laguna Beach was chosen the site of the next meeting, to be held in April.

Tea was served at a table set with silver service and a centerpiece of narcissi. Mrs. Mead and Mrs. Ethelbert Johnson poured, assisted by Mrs. R. H. Sandoz and Mrs. George Ravenkamp.

Reservations are being placed with Mrs. Turner in Santa Ana for the diocesan council at the Los Angeles Catholic Women's club Jan. 15. A joint meeting of Catholic Parent-Teacher associations will be held in the Fullerton parish hall at 1:15 o'clock next Friday, Jan. 10.

Her Betrothal Told at Tea

That Miss Barbara Duntun (above), attractive young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Duntun, 1533 East Fourth street, is to be married March 20 to Paul Hales, Santa Ana, was learned by some 50 of her friends invited to a holiday tea last Saturday in her parents' home.

TEAPOT TATTLE

By ELLEN SNEBLEY

Off to a fine new start! With memories of careening around snow-banked corners on a sled at Big Bear still vividly in mind, your Tattler turns her gaze into the future, but only after airing a few "I only heard" about the New Year holiday.

There was the chap who very carefully deposited his teapot under a candelabrum at the Country club, New Year's eve. Some hours later, a feminine guest at the party noted the waxen polka dot effect on the coat and tucking the garment merrily under one arm, proceeded to carry it around to show people. One man laughed in loudest glee—until suddenly he recognized it as his own teapot.

About 2:30, Jan. 1, at the same party, two eligible bachelors caused a near-riot by insisting they were justified in crashing the dinner dance in process. A sort of "you can't play here!" "Oh, no? Well my father owns this lot!" effect. Exciting while it lasted.

Turning to Los Serranos Country club, picture the particular ire of a Santa Ana woman who pounced on a rosebud corsage just before the last dance and sailed it away as a souvenir. It seems someone saw him hide the flowers, and made off with them before he returned. The Santa Ana used two boxes of matches and returned early the next day to hunt for the cache, which he never found.

What sort of sign is it, when the "very best people" are getting more'n more game conscious?

We started thinking about it the other day, and a checkup shows several families all wrapped up in model airplane construction. . . . Lucie McDermott et famille transacting big business in Lucie's Christmas real estate game, which is quite fascinating with mergers, rentals, sales, etc. . . . Mary Ford entertaining her friends with a tricky race where painted wooden frogs are rushed along ropes and must not lift their haunches off the floor. . . . which brings to mind the Crawford Nalles' Monte Carlo games. . . . and the general advantage of having a playroom in the home.

The C. V. Davises and their pretty daughter, Barbara, were among open house New Year's eve, if you can think back that far.

Before you invest in that new spring outfit, wait up for Junior Ebells' annual fashion show, which will be the last of next month or the very first of March. Eva Dean McKinney is abuzz with plans for the affair, for which she is mainly responsible. By the way, Mrs. George Peterson of Orange and Miss Ruth Fitz of Garden Grove are two newest names on Junior Ebells' roll call, and may they enjoy their memberships.

As your Tattler, we take occasion to comment to all you music-

Rev. H. Owings Honored at Reception

In New Year's greeting to the Rev. Harry Evan Owings, Pastor of the First Baptist church, and Mrs. Owings, several hundred guests came to the annual reception at the parsonage, 1018 Spurgeon, yesterday afternoon and evening.

Receiving with the pastor and his wife were Miss Lula Minter, president of the Woman's society, and A. F. Hill, chairman of the church trustees. Selden Martin, superintendent of the church school, augmented the line in the evening.

Flowers which had been sent by the board of deacons and other friends flanked the parsonage. From the board of trustees had been sent a boutonniere for the pastor and a corsage for Mrs. Owings.

Suggestive of a winter scene, a color scheme of silver, crystal and blue was used in the decorations.

Incidental piano music during the afternoon was given by Miss Mary Nalle with vocal solos by Russell Crouse and whistling solos by Miss Mildred Martin. Miss Mame Havens played at the evening "open house." Russell Crouse sang and Leslie Steffensen gave cello solos, accompanied by Richard Robbins. Mrs. M. E. Geeting gave a group of readings and Miss Linda Joiner sang solos.

In addition to members of the church and local friends, out-of-town friends included the Rev. William Keech and Mrs. Keech, Banning; Dr. Lewis Jacobson and Mrs. Jacobson, Redlands; R. Daniel Rittenhouse and Mrs. Rittenhouse, Pasadena.

Hostesses in the afternoon were Mrs. A. M. Robinson, Mrs. M. M. Holmes, Mrs. E. L. Morris, Mrs. L. C. Fairbanks, Mrs. J. P. Williams, Miss Mame Havens, Mrs. J. Wells Brown, Mrs. W. E. Dennis, Mrs. C. G. Lippincott, and Mrs. Jessie White. Mrs. P. H. Peters, Mrs. J. P. Green, Mrs. J. W. Taylor and Mrs. Fannie Reeves shared honors at the tea tables. Mrs. R. E. McBurney and her committee directed the kitchen arrangements.

Evening hostesses were Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. David Meyer, Mrs. C. W. Nash and Mrs. C. W. Brakeman, and Mrs. Ben Brubaker. Mrs. Mac O. Robbins, Mrs. J. E. Swanke, Mrs. H. S. Harlow and Mrs. K. A. King poured, assisted by Mrs. Richard Robbins, Mrs. E. W. Ashland, Mrs. Earl Frevert, Mrs. W. J. Hemmett and Mrs. W. E. Dennis. Mrs. C. A. Knowlton and a committee directed the kitchen in the evening.

Mr. R. C. Crouse was general chairman of the event, which was given under auspices of the Woman's society. She was assisted by Mrs. J. L. Steffensen, in charge of the program, Miss Lula Minter and Mrs. L. E. Coffman, decorations, and Mrs. L. M. Pearson and Mrs. W. E. Dennis, who provided refreshments.

The ceiling for Cora Alice Powell, Santa Ana Junior collegienne. They're her trademark, and she calls "em all "Pinky."

Alpha Rho Tau members modeled a big pink elephant as her Christmas gift. But Cory got back at the group. The tag-end of the holidays brought to each Alpha Rho Tau an elephantine card reading: "Pinky's bearing tidings of the nicest thing—Ozzie gave Cora Alice a brand new diamond ring."

Ozzie's way of explanation, is Oswald C. Ulrich, of Villa Park.

Which reminds us, among Christmas gifts we didn't mention was another brilliant diamond, this one from Ernie Stump to Ruth Owens. Our congratulations!

Did you know that long loops of golden beads are frequently unearthed from the Aztec ruins in Old Mexico?

Second woman to have accosted Les Fountain sans introduction, admitted Les Fountain's plain gold ring set with a jade piece he found in Old Mexico last June.

The jade is triangular, a face with curiously oriental features. Its owner literally stumbled onto it while trudging through a rainstorm with other theater men on tour.

He brought home also from Mexico a group of clay figurines found in the ruins, which still hold promise of hidden wealth.

Our sympathies to the Orange county collegienne who's torn between two loves—one she sees on the campus and thinks is the one-and-only, the other whose letters and occasional visits send her into a mental tumult of indecision.

We suggest as her theme song: "Tve Got Trouble, Double Trouble," and offer her identity as: "Today's little mystery."

A street corner chat with Tevis Westgate brings out the fact that that individual definitely "has nothing to say for publication," which is too, too bad!

And New Year's eve, the favorite song at Marjorie's Joe Knox' watch party was "The Music Goes Round an' Round."

Romance which had its beginning in grammar school and has continued without a break was clinaxed happily at the holiday engagement announcement tea given for Barbara Duntun. Barbara, whose very attractive eyes and infectious smile intrigue us, is busy receiving congratulations, as is also her fiance, Paul Hales, who we hear practically got a trousseau for Christmas!

Speaking of busy people, Jane

Child Welfare's Goal of President

With a half-year's experience already to her credit, Mrs. John J. Mills, president of the City Council of Parents and Teachers, is expecting the remainder of her term to profit real advantages for Santa Ana children.

Just as executives have worked under her already this year to promote child welfare in home, school and community, so she is depending upon their support during the spring term.

Health projects have been the special concern of P.-T. A. units throughout the city. With an eye to good posture and constructive health habits for children, Mrs. Mills has urged her workers to stress the health features.

Commending the spirit of her association which brings parents and teachers in closer relationship, Mrs. Mills frequently quotes to her workers the following verse by May F. Coolidge, entitled "Parent and Teacher":

"Tis the way of a mother to love her child,

To cherish and guard it forever.

For the way of a mother is sacrifice

That wavers and weakens never.

But there's someone else that loves a child

Not her own, but that of another;

One took the child from the hands of God

And one from the arms of its mother."

DR. TREMAIN HAS HOLIDAY GUESTS

Dr. Mabel Vance Tremain of Santa Ana and Fullerton has been entertaining a group of holiday guests, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hodges (Audre Reeve) of San Diego, just home from a northern jaunt, and Dr. George Reeve, now interning in Los Angeles General hospital, are the guests. Mrs. Hodges and Dr. Reeves are niece and nephew of Dr. Tremain.

Hill is spending much energy getting settled—she having moved to a to-be-redeemed home on Newport boulevard. Jane, who's very artistic, lost no time in painting the family name on the mailbox so Uncle Sammy would know where to come.

We remember: One New Year's eve party at the Daley home, when lots of today's young married couples were only going together. . . . and the snow parties the Church of the Messiah young people used to have, with "Galahad" as chaperone. . . . and Virginia Bishop, now nominating with husband, Dana Lamb, and Frances Freeman, Eric Twist, Bob Whitte, others in the group. . . . the snow parties for which Mrs. Spurgeon used to make ketles of coffee. . . . the high school treks to the snow. . . . the "good old days."

Going on the assumption that movie actresses are just as interesting as the horses at Santa Anita, we pass on this bit of news as to Fern and Leslie Colman's recent Antitard trek.

Fern had sat in blouse fashion for sometime, when she turned to tell her husband the presence of screen luminaries was grossly exaggerated. Behind her she saw Dolores Del Rio, and off to one side, Al Jolson.

She decided to drop the subject.

With which, we sign off for another week.

Mary Stoddard Should A Foster Son Repay Abusive Parents In Their Own Treatment?

By MARY STODDARD

How much does a foster son owe his parents? Just as much as he would if he were of their own flesh and blood if the foster parents treat him as such.

But suppose they do not? Suppose they never let him forget that he is "just an adopted boy?" Does he still owe them that loyalty that a real son is supposed to have for his parents? The wife of a foster son puts the query to our readers and asks for their honest opinions on the following case: Dear Miss Stoddard: I read your column day in and day out, but I never dreamed that I would be writing for advice from your readers, and I do so want their straightforward answers and will be guided accordingly.

First of all, my husband is an adopted son, and his mother has never seen fit to call him anything but her foster son. This has vexed us considerably. Furthermore, we can never go and call on his folks, and always feel assured that we are going to be welcome. Sometimes we are, and sometimes we are not. Well, this has gone on so long now that we have sort of weaned ourselves away from them.

Now, here is where the "blow" comes in. His dad is now laid up with ulcers and now they come to us telling us that he has received his last paycheck for a long, long while and they haven't a cent laid away for such emergencies. Even that wouldn't bother me, but my husband makes less than $70 a month and I'm wondering if it is "our duty" to share this with them.

If we don't, people will talk. But we have been in predicaments just as bad as theirs, and although we didn't ask their financial help, they told us we were "free, white and 21" and would have to fight our own battles. Will your readers please advise us what our duty in a case like this is? Thanks. BEE.

The Thinkers

Wherein women of the community express their views on topics of particular interest to women.

How do you think the woman of today compares with the woman of 20 years ago in regard to her "awareness?"

Mrs. Mina Meade: Twenty years ago, women in general were only beginning to awaken to their part in events, both political and in the field of current events. Today in most groups one will find women well informed on these subjects and much interested in them.

Mrs. Ed Chapman: I certainly think women are more aware of what is happening in the world than formerly, and are more alert in every way. They keep abreast of the times in an admirable way, and many times are better informed on political matters than their husbands are.

HIGH COURAGE

by Jeanne Bowman.
Chapter 43
LUKE'S PLAN

John Neuman laughed. For a young man usually so self-possessed, he seemed singularly embarrassed.

"Anyway," said he, "the sailor said that the doctor and his wife made an examination and gave the patient something. Then he regained consciousness, and demanded an attorney at once; said he knew he was going to die and that he had to protect his daughter before then."

Anne found tears stinging her eyes. Luke hadn't been trying to protect the canneries, but her. His last thought, his last breath almost, were spent for her sake.

"The sailor said he figured he ought to get out but he didn't want to wade the creek to make it and decided to wait and see if he couldn't sneak out the door, later."

"The attorney came in, and the dying man and he were closeted alone for awhile."

"The patient, whom the sailor identified as Luke Farnsworth, told the attorney that he felt his daughter was all he cared for."

"He said he wanted to marry a man who wanted her for her money only. Mr. Farnsworth said he had been looking for proof that the man was using his position with the canneries, to make money for himself; that he'd found him deceitful, even cruel."

"Luke was afraid the man would insist upon marrying the girl immediately upon his death, purportedly to protect her, and that he would wrest the ownership of the canneries away from her, in time, and aside from the cruel treatment which he was capable, would leave her penniless."

"He felt that if he pretended to leave her with only an allowance which would enable her to live comfortably in the same home he was leaving his brother, the man in the suit, who was Luke's brother, would not go through with the marriage, and that before final disposition of the estate was made, she would have found him out, and would have turned to someone more fitted to the fine woman-robe she represented."

"Farnsworth also asked the attorney to watch his daughter, and should she attempt to marry Crocker, to see she didn't without first ascertaining whether or not a woman living with Crocker's parents, near Roseburg, was Crocker's first wife and if the child, living there was not Crocker's son."

"That's why he would never take me to his people," Anne interjected. "I kept insisting that we at least drive out to see them, and Rob always found some excuse. Anne," said Kellogg, "but the more you hear about his activities for the last few months, the less you think of his brains. I've never seen such a fool idea."

Anne smiled a little shamefacedly. "You're right as usual - but the plan almost worked so far as I was concerned."

"How could you know?" demanded John Neuman loyally, and the Judge smiled a little private smile as he watched the young man and Anne. John went on:

"Luke Farnsworth learned that day, here in Astoria, that his first wife had gained a divorce for cruelty, and that Crocker's parents, recognizing the truth of her charges, had taken her in."

"told him," Tecla put in meekly, "I could not have my brother's baby made unhappy by such a man."

"Farnsworth said then, that he might be wrong. He had no definite proof of the charges, but that if Crocker were the man his daughter thought

Letters from Col. V. Orange

To Jupiter Pluvius:

Please hurry up. Our orange growers had tough enough time this season without having to spend the entire winter irrigating. And The Journal doesn't want to have to run that rain-guessing contest forever.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To Highway Patrolmen:

What are YOU going to do about the one-eyed driving and other wholesale disregard of the law governing automobile headlights? There are hundreds of reasons, perhaps, why you can't stop it, but after all it IS your problem.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To the First National Bank:

Congratulations over the 4 per cent dividend you mailed to stockholders this week. We are glad the old year treated you so well, and in spite of it being a Presidential election year, 1936 has its bright prospects, too.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To Dan Mulherron:

That was a fine New Year present you gave several hundred men when the WPA, which you represent here, put them back to work on the Santiago creek project and started the South Main street job. Looks pretty good to see the dirt flying.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To Councilman Ernest Layton:

Please reserve a seat for me the night you debate Carl Edgar on the liquor question. I don't know how well Carl speaks but he has a way of getting along, and I am sure you and he will make Frank Burke and George Kellogg look like pikers when you start your verbal fireworks.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To Santa Anans:

Get into your cars tomorrow and ride out to Santiago creek. Take a copy of Friday's Journal with you and as you view the improvements being made there, read about them that you may more fully appreciate their significance and the plans for the future. This appears to be the start of a park system of which we shall be proud some day.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To Ole Hanson and Tom Murphine:

Of all the glad news of the New Year, I think the best was a little story which came to The Journal from its correspondent at San Clemente. It told of a reunion between you two after some years of bitter political and personal warfare. If it takes a New Year party to make you Damon and Pythias again, let's have another party.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To President Roosevelt:

Your challenge to "the few" who would abandon the policy adopted by the Democratic administration and carried out for three years, was impressive and doubtless sounded the keynote of what may be one of the nation's most historical campaigns. Friend and foe alike stand impressed by your skillful handling of a difficult political situation.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To James Sleeper:

Congratulations on your silver jubilee of service as county assessor of Orange county. I have observed that you have discovered the secret of rendering efficient service without offense in a position which is most trying at times. Telling a man how much taxes he shall pay isn't the most popular undertaking under the sun, but you seem to have thrived on it, Jim. More luck to you.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To Councilman Joe Smith:

I was interested in an interview The Journal obtained from you yesterday about the city's relationship with the Metropolitan Water District, what becomes of the money the city pays to the district, and how much our supply eventually is going to cost us. It does seem to me there has been a lack of information given the public about the MWD. We seem to hear a great deal from the district, however, when it wants money.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To Senator William E. Borah:

This country is waiting, not without some impatience, your views on the Townsend old-age pension plan and other matters. Its people believe in your sincerity, although they have at times questioned your judgment. We feel the bosses will rule you out, but we know your contribution to the thought and activities of this, the most important political year in many, will be a safe guide and an inspiration.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To J. Frank Burke:

Although out of the newspaper business, you seem to make your presence felt in no uncertain way. We have disagreed with you on many matters and agreed with you on others. We know your views on the proposed recall of three members of the board of supervisors will be listened to with much interest when you broadcast them over radio station KVOE Tuesday night, but we hope the county may be spared a recall election. I have been through two of them elsewhere and can assure you little good is accomplished in the long run.

Whimsies of O. O. McIntyre

This will be another of those aimless, wandering and runaway columns. It always is when I have to sit a half hour without the slightest mental twitch. Frequently it has the unexpectedness of a table tipping experiment. Sit a long while, then buckitty-buckitty.

There's a reason for drawing this mental blank. Morpheus was coy last night. I counted sheep, read Hiawatha, downed a hot glass of milk and lolled around in a tepid bath. But just as I'd feel myself slipping away I would be swimming again in the wide-eyed frisk of the goldfish.

At 4 a. m. I yanked trousers over my pajamas, muffled into a great coat and drifted a couple of blocks east to one of those back-room neighborhood places. It was drained of the usual bustle. The bandy-legged man-of-all-work was cleaning up the ice box.

A flotsam madam, trying to look maidly with witchy bangs like Helen Morgan's, was dawdling over a flat beer and reading a tabloid. The bartender was checking up the cash register. After a Scotch appraisal I ordered a round for the house and a hot lemonade for myself.

Madam pondered over what she would drink. She had been bearing it up, she explained, since early evening and if I didn't mind shed go on a stiff old fashioned and go on to her flat around the corner. Bandy Legs' choice was a beer and the bartender held aloft a cigar, tucked it, pencil-like, behind his ear to drop in the box again.

There's a touch of the forlorn about a drinking den with a live out. A hoppy sour aroma, like the dry sad smell of lysol at a work-house. Most cordially after midnight is false. Madam told a music hall joke and looked hopefully into her emptied glass. While turning up my coat collar before opening the side door to depart, I heard the bar man say: "One of the Sutton Place crowd." I felt distinguished.

A block away a knot of people and a stalled car. A half dozen peering into the lifted hood. No where does an auto breakdown attract a crowd as in New York. In the back seat a bright and ruffled blonde had curled up and was relaxing with deep cleavage inhales. The clerkly-looking owner tinkered here and there, glancing at his wrist watch and perspiring freely. One gained an impression somehow he was in more than ordinary dilemma. The frequent watch-glancing was the give-away. He knew he should be somewhere he was not as the sky crumbled into pink. I wondered if it might not be his first night out with the usual indiscretion.

Another block and a pair of hotel detectives I know. Both derided, whiffing whacking George Jessel cigars and sporting conspicuous lodge buttons. In union they wanted to know what I was about at such an hour and there were quick, knowing glances at my floppy house slippers and uncoiled neck. Strange how we look upon almost everybody out of routine with suspicion in the sliding shadows of night. And I had the uncomfortable feeling I should explain. But a taxi careened up with a silk-hatted morning jay. I moved off before he had a chance to talk with me. Anytime, day or night, drunks will try to tell me around in a waltz.

It was the first time I had seen or at least noticed the spindly rubber-tired milk wagons. Like props in a musical comedy scene. Too, no yelling among the drivers such as used to make drowsy hideous. In spick white uniforms they suggested internes. On a lonely, gloomy stretch of 48th street two spindly types, grim and sleepy-eyed. I thought somehow of the Bronte sisters crossing the foggy moors on the way to Haworth.

The drugstore's boy on the corner had arrived to put the morning shine on his shop. Loosely overalled and with cap abaft. At 9, in campus cut clothes, he would be off for his college classes. Three nights a week from 8 to 12, he's a soda jerk near Grand Central. He does not average more than four hours sleep nightly. But he's young, keeps well and feels he's going to get on in the world. He's chosen an engineering career. His manner, too, had accusatory tinge. As though thinking: "Off the reservation! Well, one never knows!"

One of the greatest curses of American life has been speculation. The kind of speculation I am talking about is the involuntary speculation of the farmer when he puts his crops into the ground.

In my judgment the time has come again for a stinky man to be president of the United States, and Governor Landon is a stinky man.—Henry J. Allen, ex-governor of Kansas.

The parole system has been overworked. Hardened criminals use it too much. The parole was meant for the first offender as a method of rehabilitation.

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Bonus leaders have vetoed a secret compromise proposal to exclude from the bonus bill the provision cancelling interest charges on loans. This would put the interest charge on each veteran borrowing on his certificate. Veterans informed congressional spokesmen that they are standing pat on the demand for payment of the full face value of the certificates. Government printing office employees have free movies once a week during lunch hour, with dance music or a band concert one other day each week. Contrary to general belief, the Jackson day celebration staged each year on Jan. 8 by the Democratic party is not in memory of the fiery warrior President's birth. It is in honor of his victory over the British at New Orleans. Jackson incidentally, was born after the death of his father. Another President with a similar singularity was Rutherford B. Hayes. Texas bull-voiced Representative Tom Blanton, who prides himself on being the "watchdog of the treasury" is not the first to claim such honor. Old congressional records disclose that as far back as 1850 a Representative George Houston of Alabama made political capital by loudly professing similar claims.

While a President cannot be arrested while in office, both Presidents Pierce and Grant were momentarily placed under arrest while White House incumbents; the former when he accidentally ran down a woman while riding horseback and the latter for his driving horses. The daily stream of publicity handouts issued by the American Liberty League is almost as voluminous as that of the government departments it criticizes. In addition to daily press releases, the league issues numerous bulletins, pamphlets and other publications.

HOME LOAN EXTENSION

A bill is being drafted secretly on Capitol Hill to give a six months' period of grace to home owners who are delinquent in their payments on government loans. The home owners' loan corporation recently reported that approximately 20 per cent of the total payments due it are 90 or more days overdue. Republican strategy in attacking the President's reciprocal trade agreement with Canada will take the form of a move to require senate ratification of such transactions.

Among Democratic congressmen there is considerable grouching over the assessment of $50 for a ticket to next week's Jackson day dinner. The boys are complaining that they can't afford the price. Also that if word gets back to their constituents that they attended a $50-a-plate dinner it will do their re-election chances no good. A hot confirmation fight is in prospect against the recent appointment by the President of Lamar Hardy as U. S. attorney for the Southern New York district. Hardy, a henchman of Edward J. Flynn, Bronx political boss, is being opposed by the Manhattan Tammany leaders, who view his elevation to the powerful position as a direct slap at them. The New York Bar association also opposes. Successor to Huey Long's desk on the senate floor is Oklahoma's blind Senator Thomas Gore, who aided the late Kingfish in his closing hour filibuster last session, thereby killing the deficiency bill and appropriations for old age pensions. The bronze name plate on Huey's desk has been given to his widow.

Twenty-Five Years Ago

Jan. 4, 1910
Vernon R. Churchill, editor of the Kerman News, was a New Year's guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mac O. Robbins. The two men were roommates at Pomona college.

E. J. Miller and wife and Miss Mabel Glenn are here from Huron, S. D., to spend the winter. Mr. Miller is a brother and Miss Glenn a niece of Mrs. C. C. Langley.

Miss Edna Robbins very charmingly entertained at an informal afternoon party yesterday in honor of her houseguests, Miss Estelle Summers and Miss Hazel Holloway. Those present besides the hostess and honored guests were Misses Amy Mead, Rosemond and Lillian Norman, Catherine Cuthbert, Gladys Harrison, Irene and Edna Beatty, Bess Damron, Edith Stanley, Verna Peterson, Mrs. Mac O. Robbins and Mrs. William H. Spurgeon, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Winbiger were most pleasantly surprised last evening when a number of their friends and neighbors dropped in on them uninvited to help celebrate their wedding anniversary. Those present besides Mr. and Mrs. Winbiger were Dr. I. D. Mills and Mrs. Mills, Dr. John Wehrly and Mrs. Wehrly, Messrs. and Mesdames F. P. Nicky, W. L. Tubbs, J. W. Harris, W. F. Harris, Arthur Lyon, Phil Phillips, R. M. Price, H. J. Forgy, A. J. Padgham, H. C. Davies and E. B. Burns, Mrs. Gertrude Finley and Prof. J. W. McCormack.

Howdy, folks! Quick, the gas mask! Congress is in session!

If congress wishes to win the approval of all American husbands, its first act will be to pass a law prohibiting tippy bridge lamps.

A group of hardy swimmers took a plunge into the water at Seal Beach yesterday. L'il Gee Gee says she would have joined them, but she was afraid she would have to be hauled out with a pair of ice tongs.

THRIFT & ECONOMY DEPARTMENT

Cold weather is no problem to Ezra Pinchpenny, Laguna's stingiest citizen. When his family complains that the house is chilly, Ezra tells them, "Turn on the radio; the tubes will soon warm up the house."

Ezra Pinchpenny has another way to keep warm these days. He thinks about his Christmas bills, and immediately breaks into a sweat.

ANNOUNCEMENT FOR SALE OR SWAP

One set of New Year's resolutions. Practically new.—Joe Bungstarter.

Occultist declares that reading in street cars is very bad for the eyes. Especially when the person whose paper you are reading won't keep still.

One of the hardest things in the world for a man to do is to remember his new auto license number.

When a woman stays home all the time, she doesn't get to hear anything that goes on in the world, except what she hears over the telephone, reads in the newspapers, learns on the radio, and hears over the back fence.

This is the season of the year when an economical bloke can paper his house with the calendars he receives from obliging firms.

YE DIARY

Having breakfasted, mighty desirous to smoke a brown paper cigarette, but cannot, my New Year's resolution having been to forego the smoking of backo, besides I do fear that if I do break my resolution, Dame Juice will make merrie jester at my expense. And so, like a small boy, do sneak out to the back alley, and there light a cigarette, the best, in all truth, ever I smoked. Anon to work.

American industry is not selfish. It would be far more just to say it has been preoccupied—preoccupied in producing.

One Man's Opinion

By Duncan Ellsworth Clark
EDITOR'S NOTE:—Here is an informative, analytical daily feature on current topics. The opinions expressed in this column are not necessarily the same as those held by The Journal.

We Must Study Human Relationship

A FRIEND sends his "Daily for Worry Schedule" for the new year. Compare it with your own and note results.

1. Worrying about business conditions, three seconds.
2. Worrying about communism, one second.
3. Worrying about Mussolini, two seconds.
4. Worrying about Hitler two seconds.
5. Worrying about foreign debts (as if our own weren't bad enough), five seconds.
6. Worrying about war, 10 seconds.
7. Worrying about the weather, six seconds.
8. Worrying about the stupidity of the human race, and ourselves in particular, no seconds.
9. Worrying lest we forget to worry, one minute.
10. Worrying about being more neighborly and friendly to you and being more helpful during 1936, 23 hours, 55 minutes, 31 seconds.

Greatest discovery in our day is not in added mastery of nature's secrets. It lies in the field of human relationships, the contacts of folks with folks. Not what men know, but what they do, how they behave themselves, how they affect others, what motives govern their actions—these are the weighty considerations. Multitudes of possessions will not prevent a man from being weighed in the balance and found wanting.

A college president has said that the filling stations of America are teaching more courtesy than all the colleges and universities of the country combined. At any rate, the cordial reception one gets at a filling station is in marked contrast to the fishy stare and clammy touch in the registrar's window at many a university.

Incidentally, a university is about the only place where you plunk down real money for alleged benefits and when the returns are less than nothing you have no redress.

Somebody ought to have nerve enough to sue for damages and recovery when he takes a course, paying good cash for it, and then draws a failing grade. No other business would think of charging for service and giving nothing in return.

In a constantly shrinking world the matter of human relationships becomes more and more important. Since the earth is a neighborhood through which communication is carried with the speed of thought, neighborliness is more vitally necessary than ever before.

Discords are more disturbing. Harshness is more rasping. Pleasantness is more helpful. Charming manners, agreeable appearance, modulated tones, music, beauty, social graces—all are more valuable than ever.

Courtesy and politeness are as sets of the first order.

SKINNY SKRIBBLES

Around and About Town

With C. F. SKIRVIN

Gave the Chris McNeil unit of the courthouse the once over this forenoon. I put money in there twice every year and wanted to see which door it went in and which one it came out of. Could not find out. There's too many doors. I got in the east entrance about 9 o'clock and out about 10. That's going some, because they have a lot of people in the courthouse proper, and then put more in the annex.

That's a great institution—the courthouse. I like 'em because they are not exclusive. Every county has one. They use 'em for coroners and assessors and treasurers and clerks and boards of supervisors and auditors, and periodically for grand jurors. There's more goin' on in a courthouse than in the world court. If you get into trouble they'll take you to the courthouse, and if the trouble gets too big for a courthouse they can find space for you across the street.

When I arrived this morning the janitor had beat me to it. He had the east door open, and if you didn't like the place you could just keep going and exit on the west side. If you were at all final two other doors after were at your disposal. It's a much easier place to get into, however, than it is to get out of. I've known of instances where it took weeks for a fellow to get his freedom, and then it was only going from trouble to worse. Business is sometimes started in a courthouse which lasts a lifetime. It all depends on where you're headed. My transaction was of little importance, so I was able to get out within the hour, and no one asked me to stay longer.

Tried the door leading to the supervisors' headquarters but it was locked. Didn't find out whether it was vacation time or a recall. Hall loiterer advised that I come back next Tuesday. Could not promise him because I'm likely to have something else to do next Tuesday.

Encountered Judge Frank Drumm, and he started up the stairs one way and had to turn around again to get to the top. So did I. They built the stairs that way. It was a case of two souls with two thoughts. Drumm wanted to see Judge Allen on business, and I wanted to see him because I didn't have any business.

This was a case where the "worm" was too alert for the early birds. The judge hadn't arrived, but was on the bench later dispensing justice to those who had it coming, and the other kind to those who asked for it. Neighbors like I stepped across the hall into Homer Ames' apartments, but he was out of town and the office force in charge. Wouldn't wait for Judge Scovel. He and I belong to the same orange packing house, and I was not in the mood to discuss oranges. Anyway, Friday is propane day, and a lot of other folks were on the calendar away ahead of my case.

So I was going to slide down the banister, only it wouldn't have been dignified, and such a procedure would give a lot of friends an opportunity to register their objection, so I touched bottom in the regular way, and with my feet firmly planted on the floor, started toward the clerk's rendezvous.

Peeked into the marriage license department. There wasn't a fight in sight. Usually I encounter several couples who are willing to sign up until the best one wins. They don't appear to issue the kind of a marriage license that I bought. Many of 'em just expediences. The old populist county clerk who took my money gave me one that has held fast for a long time. And I never asked the reporter to "keep it out of the paper." Gosh, I was so proud I wanted everybody to know about it. Haven't changed my mind, either.

On the other side of the hall Joe Backs and his bunch were battin' a hundred. He was receivin' and distributin' and fillin' and talkin' and workin' all at the same time. During odd times he keeps the records for the board of supervisors. Fact is he keeps so many records that some of 'em are filed down stairs, and often he has to carry some of 'em up stairs. Across the hall he supervises the registration system. His job is like running a department store.

Say, I only got half through the first unit where everybody was too busy to pay much attention to me, but I did come away with the conviction that the taxpayers had put a lot of people to work, and it looked like they were all trying to earn their allowances.
